

1. (Amended) A method of screening an agent for an [angiogenesis] activity potentially useful in treatment or prophylaxis of angiogenesis, said method comprising administering the agent to a teleost, whereby the agent effects the activity in the teleost, and detecting a response in the teleost indicating [angiogenesis] the [activity] agent is potentially useful in treatment or prophylaxis of angiogenesis.

p. 23, lines 8-11

p. 53, line 25

PA 3124696 v1